ALEXANDRIA INFIRMARY.

Alexandria, Vs., March 8.
To the Board of Managers of the Alexandria Infirmary:
Ladies:—Again it becomes my pleasing duty to report the workings of the Alexandria Infirmary for the period of two months. When I entered upon my service in January there were fourteen patients readmitted. During the two months there were thirty new patients admitted, making a total in the hospital of forty-four.

Of these, eighteen were cured, two improved, two sent to other hospitals, and two deaths, one of these being little Maggie Brown, whose death was due to tubercular disease. The efficiency and washed ficiency and marked politeness of the ittle doorkeeper will cause her to be remembered very kindly by the lady managers and the various members of the medical staff.

When I made my report last year I thought it would be the last opportunity I would have for some time to comment on the beautiful changes that had taken place during the previous year, but I am in the same position today that I was at a simular time last year.

The changes that have taken place The changes that have taken place have been of a most marked charac

Our hospital is today a thing of beauty, and blending, as it does, utility it must indeed be a joy forever, and I am fully convinced that as long as the present efficient board of lady managers as sis ed by our energetic matron shall con-trol the Alexandria Infirmary, improve-ment and progress will continue to manifest itself in every department.

manifest itself in every department.
Theo, ladies, I have one suggestion to offer, which I hope you can devise means to develop. To every physician in the city of Alexandria the utter ignorance of the laws governing surgical chaliness, and the utter inability to take the temperature of the sick, as manifested by the so called nurses, is of the most flagrant character.

When I tell you that, outside of our lating any there are but three nurses.

Infirmary, there are but three nurses CATARRH in the city who are cognizant of the abcolute essentia's, I tell you what I know to be the fact.

Now, cannot you ladies devise means by which this state of affairs can be changed, and the hospital, by educating a certain number of young and bright women each year, thereby send is blessings with every household of he city. Respectfully, G. T. KLIPSTEIN, M. D.

THE HUMAN OSTRICH. - Professor William S. Halsted, of the Johns Hopkins University and Hospital, Baltimore, yesterday performed one of the strangest operations on record. He cut into the abdomen of a man, opened ale stomsch and removed some of the nost remarkable objects ever taken from a man's stomach. These included knives, forks, nails, tacks, watch chains, dog chains, glasses, knife bandles and imilar things. Arthur Shutt, who said he was by "profession" a "human or-rich" and "man with a cast-iron stomch was the subject of the operation. The stomach was then cleansed out with a warm sterilized salt solution. The two flaps of the stomach were tenderly brought together and sewed up with catgut strings. In like manner the murcles and skin were sewed together. The operation, which was of a most delicate nature and required great will be consumed two hours and a half skill, consumed two hours and a half, and in that period the patient did not
